The Crown Mountain Difference

“With our homebase being in the heart of the Chugach Mountain Range, our rideable terrain is second none. We get into amazing maritime, coastal snowpacks for thicker and stickier snow or can venture to higher intermountain zones to find light, blower snowpacks.

Our location also strategically allows us access to multiple mountain ranges, all easily flyable from the lodge. On bad weather days, we can fly north to the Talkeetna Range or west to some of the most aesthetic mountains in Alaska in the Tordrillo Mountain Range – add that to our backyard, the Chugach Mountains, along with the Kenai Mountains and the Alaska Range and we can fly to five ranges throughout Southcentral Alaska.

Our terrain options consist of everything: mellow glacial powder fields, couloirs through massive cliffs to steep wide-open faces, we have access to all types of terrain, welcoming all levels of riders while having access to gnarlier terrain for the experienced riders and film crews.”
